

Donating to AkshayaPatra

If you are planning to give an online donation for any charitable organization AkshayaPatra Foundation is what you should look for. Though many people are unaware about this remarkable organization, but this is the major benevolent organization in the world.

This Foundation is established in 2000 with the aim of feeding the school children of India. In the beginning the numbers of children are about 1500 and it slowly increased and grown to a massive organization which is moving towards approximately 950,000 children! So I would strongly say that this foundation is the best place for on online donation.

What can a child learn in an empty stomach? The underprivileged children cannot perform well in school and they don't even attend school or may even drop out from school so that they work and earn money for food and for their families. So in order to help these underprivileged children AkshayaPatra foundation has come up with a mid-day meal which provides nutrition meal to the poor children in India.

These types of organizations don't come up in one day and they are not a fly by night operation. The growth of AkshayaPatra organization has been judged by the Department of Education. According to the study around 91.8% of teachers found that an improved nutrition has a great force on student's attendance. Not only this, 99% of students is in good health and has stamina to read and learn.

If you have the plans of making online donation then If you have to get impressed by AkshayaPatra organization and know more about its achievements listed below.

Harvard Business School was so impressed with the efficiency of this charitable organization that they made AkshayaPatra a case study in their MBA curriculum. They cite the organizations ability to maximize the impact of donated dollars. This is accomplished by using the latest technology to prepare 100,000 meals in only six hours! In addition, AkshayaPatra has found a way to feed a child for 1200 dollars per year.

In addition to their food program, AkshayaPatra in cooperation with other charitable organizations went one-step further. They instituted a medical program to get much needed vitamins and de-worming medications to the malnourished and impoverished children of India. Furthering their mission of defeating poverty through food and wellness. They even encourage pregnant and lactating women to participate in the food program, to avoid malnutrition in infants.

Achieving all this seems to be difficult but the centralized kitchens can arrange up to 2,000,000 meals per day. The human participation in this work is quite low. In just few years, this charitable organization is working amazingly well.

Investors can contribute their online donations in complete confidence as a reputable company independently audits this group. AkshayaPatra also sends their contributor regular updates like meal costs and government subsidies. A more transparent organization would be difficult to find. Send your online donations today with confidence that it will be well utilized.
