

How Do I Become an Elementary School Art Teacher - 4 Points

How do I become an elementary school art teacher could be the question you are asking if you have decided that your love for art and children is enough for you to pursue this career. You should already know that the basic foundations an elementary education teacher lays within her students lie in the social and academic areas. As you want to add art to the mix, there will be more you need to do to prepare yourself best.

In this article we will explain to you what you need to do in order to teach elementary school children everything they need to know about art. Initially in order for you to become an elementary school teacher you will need to have some kind of formal education.

Generally a master's degree is useful. Also you will need to have obtained the correct licenses and certificates for teaching in accordance with the state where you will be doing the teaching.

So as well as having an elementary teacher's qualifications, those who want to teach art as well would be sensible to get one of the following qualifications in addition to the above. You can either choose to gain your Bachelor of Fine Arts Degree or Bachelor of Visual Arts Degree or you may choose to obtain your Bachelor of Studio Arts Degree.

In your search for the school from which to receive your formal art education, take the following things into consideration. Start with seeing if any of your potential instructors have worked in the same area you are endeavoring to enter - elementary school. This will be a big bonus. If it's at all possible, get to know these potential instructors and even sit in on some of their classes.

Secondly inquire what support they will provide to their students once they have graduated. So look closely and see if they have some department within the school which will actually assist you with getting employment after completion of your course work. Also it is important that you find out as much as you can about their rates with regard to placement of students in positions after they have graduated.

If you are able to, try and speak to former students who have completed the course and graduated from the school you are interested in attending. You will want to know the good as well as the bad points of the course work and placement service. Get tips on the teachers too.

But as well as having your degree it is also important that you have a love for art as well. Through your degree and love of the subject you will be able to guide your students more effectively when the lessons are taking place.

Helping to guide elementary school students in learning about art and hopefully even nurturing a life-long love of and interest in art should be your number one point to consider. Then once you obtain your degrees, certifications and licenses, you will be on your way. We hope these above factors in our article have helped you to discover how do I become an elementary school art teacher.
